

I know that the NAB is concerned with satellite radio's competition, and for good reason, and that is that they don't provide the service that satellite radio does. If they think of satellite radio as cable radio they will understand. There choice of TV is awful, and cable TV is becomming more and more popular, and why? Because this is what people want. And who owns the airways? NOT the NAB, but us, or put another way US (the United States, not some corporations. I selected satellite radio because it provided what broadcast radio did not, and I won't have that changed.
